

UNIVERSITY OF
DENVER

New Faculty 2022

College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences

Reginald (Reggie) Byron
Sociology & Criminology
Associate Professor and Director of Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program

Reggie previously held a position as a Professor of Sociology at Southwestern University, in Georgetown, Texas. In line with Critical Race Theory, his work exposes and critiques the institutional manifestations of racism and sexism in U.S. social institutions (like the workplace, education system, the media, and public accommodations).

Philip Chen
Political Science
Assistant Professor

Phil previously worked at Beloit College in southern Wisconsin in the Department of Political Science. His research examines the ways race, gender, and other social identities affect American political behavior and public opinion. He is currently writing a book about race, gender, and trust in the federal courts.

Christy Cobb
Religious Studies
Assistant Professor

Christy is delighted to be joining the Religious Studies department at DU after teaching at Wingate University in North Carolina. Christy's research focuses on issues of slavery, gender, and sexuality in the New Testament and Early Christianity.

Menglu Gao
English & Literary Arts
Assistant Professor

Menglu is an Assistant Professor of Victorian Literature. She specializes in nineteenth-century British and Anglophone literature, with research interests in medical humanities, empire studies, Anglo-Chinese transnational studies, and critical theory. She received her PhD in Comparative Literary Studies from Northwestern University.

Jessica Garrick
Sociology & Criminology
Teaching Assistant Professor

Jessica received her PhD from the University of Michigan. She teaches classes on work, markets, and law. She researches the social and political construction of policies meant to improve the lives of workers and families.

College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences

Xue He
Center for World Languages & Cultures
Teaching Assistant Professor

Xue received her PhD in Second Language Acquisition from the University of Iowa in 2022. She will be a Teaching Assistant Professor in Chinese at DU. Her research interests are in the second language learning of Chinese grammar and task-based language teaching.

Jeremy Johnson
Communication Studies
Assistant Professor

Jeremy previously worked as a postdoc at UC Berkeley and as a lecturer at University of the Pacific. He holds a PhD in Communication Arts & Sciences from Penn State. His research focuses on public discourse and argumentation in digital environments, especially surrounding algorithms and data systems.

Yunying (Annie) Le
Psychology
Research Assistant Professor

Annie's research is situated at the intersection of couple relationship health, prevention/intervention, and research methodology. Her goal is to develop and adapt tailored prevention/intervention programs that promote couples' relationship health at different stages across the lifespan.

Remy Le Boeuf
Music
Assistant Professor

Remy is a 2x Grammy-nominated composer and saxophonist whose music is rooted in the jazz tradition and overlaps into contemporary classical and indie-rock. He taught at the Manhattan School of Music and the University of South Florida. His academic interests include jazz orchestra composition, cross-genre collaboration, and the overlap of improvised music and language.

Michal Lev
Languages, Literatures & Cultures
Teaching Assistant Professor

Michal is a professor of Hebrew at the department of LL&C, CWLC, and CJS. She received her MA in Teaching Hebrew as a second language from Middlebury College VT. Her specialty and interests are effective teaching skills and learning styles.

College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences

Runchao Liu
Media, Film & Journalism Studies
Assistant Professor

Runchao (she/they) is a media and cultural studies scholar with a research focus on sound-mediated cultural practices for ways they intersect with social justice, cultural identity, and creative activism. Before DU, Liu taught various media theory and production courses at the University of Wyoming and the University of Minnesota.

Lisa Miracchi Titus
Philosophy
Assistant Professor

Lisa was previously an Associate Professor of Philosophy with tenure at the University of Pennsylvania, and was also affiliated with their Cognitive Science (MindCORE) and Robotics (GRASP) Centers. She works on issues regarding the nature and explanation of mind and intelligence, and the ethical implications of AI and robotics technology.

Poupeh Missaghi
English & Literary Arts
Assistant Professor

Poupeh is a creative writer, scholar, editor, and translator (between English and Persian). Her debut novel trans(re)lating house one was published in 2020 (Coffee House Press) and her translation of Nasim Marashi's novel I'll Be Strong for You in 2021 (Astra House).

Dakota Park-Ozee
Communication Studies
Assistant Professor

Dakota is a scholar of political communication with a focus on discourses of identity and dominant narratives in U.S. public and political life. These include class- and gender-based identities across popular, press, and elite contexts. She received her PhD from the University of Texas at Austin.

Heidi Vuletich
Psychology
Assistant Professor

Heidi completed her PhD at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and a postdoc at Indiana University Bloomington. She investigates the psychological mechanisms that contribute to social inequalities, such as disparities by socioeconomic status, race, and gender.

Zoe Weiss
Music
Assistant Professor

Zoe is a musicologist and performing musician on the viola da gamba and Baroque cello. She recently completed her PhD at Cornell University, writing her dissertation about musical and material networks in Elizabethan England. She has taught at Cornell, Ithaca College, and the Cornell Prison Education Program.

Daniels College of Business

Jennifer Dobmeier
Marketing
Teaching Assistant Professor

Jenny teaches and consults in the areas of marketing, supply chain and global business. Her professional experience includes leadership roles in sales and marketing, product management, innovation, international business, and supply chain. Jenny received a BS in Physics from SUNY Geneseo, a MS in Engineering from the University of Virginia and an EMBA from DU.

Paul Harrison
Finance
Teaching Assistant Professor

Paul teaches courses for both undergraduate and graduate students in finance and ethics. He holds a Colorado Certified Public Accountant license and the Certified Financial Planner designation. He earned a Master of Business Administration from the University of Colorado and a Master of Taxation from the University of Denver.

Christopher Pena
Business Information & Analytics
Assistant Professor of the Practice of Business Analytics

Christopher has nearly 20 years of experience in higher education, with a focus on institutional effectiveness, EDI, and data strategy. He served as Director of Data Management at DU and Deputy Strategy Officer at MSU Denver, and he is a national leader in applying critical quantitative methods to institutional research.

Jung Hyun Kwon
Management
Assistant Professor

Jung is an Entrepreneurship and Strategic Management scholar. His research interests include strategic management of intellectual property rights and technology-based entrepreneurship, with particular emphasis on value capture and creation strategies as well as the economics of entrepreneurship. He develops theoretical frameworks for organizational and entrepreneurial economics that address societal challenges.

Alexey (Alex) Petkevich
Finance
Associate Professor

Alex earned his PhD in Finance from Texas A&M University. His research interests are in asset pricing, derivatives, and institutional investors with a specific focus on market inefficiencies. He is originally from Belarus and comes to DU after ten years of working in Ohio at the University of Toledo.

Daniels College of Business

Vivek Sah

Real Estate & Construction Management

Professor and Director

Vivek is a nationally recognized expert on housing and real estate matters and has been quoted numerous times in various media outlets including National Public Radio, Wall Street Journal, Globe Street and other regional outlets. His research interests are in housing markets and REITs and he has published in all leading real estate journals in the U.S and U.K. He is currently the editor of the Journal of Real Estate Portfolio Management. Before starting here, Vivek was the Director of the Lied Center for Real Estate at UNLV. He received his PhD from Georgia State University.

John Sebesta

Entrepreneurship & Venture Management

Professor of the Practice of Entrepreneurship

John is a PhD candidate in the Executive PhD program at DU and received his MBA from Southern Methodist University. He blends corporate and entrepreneurship experience in both international and domestic contexts. John's research interests include entrepreneurial cognition, social entrepreneurship, and the role of business in society.

Graduate School of Professional Psychology

Sara Campbell
Teaching Assistant Professor

Sara is a teaching assistant professor in the undergraduate program in Kinesiology and Sport Studies and in the Master of Arts in Sport Coaching. She previously taught courses at University of Georgia and Montana State University. Her interests are in coaching, coach education, and philosophy, and she is a former soccer coach and athlete.

Scarlett (Seong-In) Choi
Associate Professor
PsyD Program Director

Scarlett previously was the Director of the Counseling Psychology PsyD Program at Springfield College. Her research interests include tests and measurement, help-seeking attitudes, psychotherapy process, and cross-cultural and multicultural issues in psychotherapy and assessment. Dr. Choi is the President-elect of the APA Council of Counseling Psychology Training Programs, and a board member of the APA Division 52 International Psychology.

Kelly Elliott
Research Assistant Professor

Kelly previously held a postdoctoral fellowship at DU's Graduate School of Professional Psychology. Her research and clinical work includes providing direct services for in the Caring for yoU and Baby (CUB) Clinic, meeting the needs of at-risk children and families, and promoting culturally competent and developmentally targeted services for families.

Karen Grabowski
Visiting Teaching Assistant Professor

Karen has previously taught at GSPP as part of her forensic fellowship and as an adjunct faculty member. She has worked in forensic mental health systems throughout her training and career. Her clinical work has involved conducting assessments and working to improve forensic and mental health systems, and her research interests reflect these topics.

Breigh Jones-Coplin
Clinical Assistant Professor

Breigh previously served as an adjunct faculty member at GSPP. She has extensive training and experience working with athletes across various age groups, sports and skill levels, specifically assessing and treating a wide range of psychological, behavioral, and interpersonal difficulties that impact the well-being and functioning of students and student-athletes.

Graduate School of Professional Psychology

Laura Ramzy

Clinical Associate Professor

Laura joins GSPP from Lowry Family Health Center, where she worked as a Clinical Psychologist. Her research interests are in the areas of integrated care, refugee and immigrant health, multicultural sensitivity, and diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) issues within primary care, and projects focused on DEI issues experienced by frontline healthcare workers.

Torrey Wilson

Professor and Dean

Torrey previously held positions as Dean at the College of Applied Behavioral Sciences at the University of Indianapolis and Chair of the Doctoral Psychology Program at Adler University. He has held faculty appointments at several universities since 1991. His research interests are in the areas of sexism and sexual harassment in doctoral training programs, and the experience of marginalized populations in group psychotherapy. He has held leadership positions within the national psychology training communities.

Graduate School of Social Work

Autumn Asher BlackDeer Assistant Professor

Autumn comes to us from the Brown School at Washington University in St. Louis, where she earned her PhD in 2022. She is a Decolonial Indigiqueer scholar from the Southern Cheyenne Nation. She previously served as a Faculty Associate at the Buder Center for American Indian Studies. Her scholarship illuminates the impact of structural violence on American Indian and Alaska Native communities.

Tyrone Hamler Research Assistant Professor

Tyrone is completing his PhD in social welfare at Case Western University, and has held various positions at Case Western University, the University of Cincinnati, and Cincinnati State Community and Technical College. He was a medical social worker for seven years. His research interests include kidney disease, chronic illness, minority aging, healthcare decision-making, and gerontology.

Deborah Blumenthal Assistant Professor of the Practice of Social Work

Deborah holds her MSW from the University of Denver, and has been a social work practitioner in Colorado for over 25 years. She has been affiliated with the field education program at the University of Denver since 2013, most recently as the Clinical Field Manager. Her focus is on mental wellness in youth and families.

Mónica Gutiérrez Assistant Professor

Mónica received her PhD from Arizona State University, where she has served in various senior research and instructor roles. Her research aims to enhance the well-being of Latinx families and communities by identifying and addressing the impact of systemic racism on inequitable access to power, land, and resources.

Jason Lester Clinical Assistant Professor

Jason earned his doctor of social work degree from the University of Southern California and his MSW from the University of Denver. He has held multiple administrative roles with various Colorado Human Services agencies. His expertise includes child welfare, social welfare administration, and power, privilege, and oppression.

Josef Korbel School of International Studies

Debak Das
Assistant Professor

Debak's research lies at the intersection of international security, nuclear weapons, diplomacy, statecraft, and international history. Debak's current book explores how states develop and acquire the means of nuclear delivery and examines the different trajectories states have taken in developing their nuclear forces.

Francisco Rodriguez Caballero
Rice Family Professor of the Practice of International & Public Affairs

Francisco is an economist with decades of experience in public service, academia, and the private sector. His research focuses on understanding the relationship between political conflict and economic performance and has argued that economic collapses can result from the breakdown in institutions that manage political conflict.

Kaitlyn Sims
Assistant Professor

Kaitlyn is interested in the ways that individuals cope with uncertainty and social turbulence, including housing insecurity, domestic violence, incarceration, environmental health hazards, and poverty. Her research seeks to improve our understanding of how public policy impacts the prevalence of these uncertainties and how households recover from these shocks.

Rachel Sigman
Assistant Professor

Rachel studies democracy, bureaucratic politics, and political economy in Africa. Her forthcoming book looks at the different ways that politicians extract money from the state to fund their election campaigns, and how their different extraction strategies shape the capacity and performance of the state's executive and bureaucratic institutions.

Morgridge College of Education

Yixiao Dong
Research Methods and Information Science
Assistant Professor

Yixiao is an assistant professor in the Research Methods and Statistics program. His current research focuses on cognitive constructs and quantitative methodologies. Substantively, Yixiao is interested in the developmental processes associated with cognitive abilities and how they impact success in STEM domains. Methodologically, he works to develop and apply cutting-edge quantitative techniques on complex data (e.g., multi-level structure, longitudinal, informative missing data) to solve various research problems in education and psychology.

Carrie A. Olson
Teaching & Learning Sciences
Visiting Assistant Professor of the Practice of Teaching & Learning

Carrie (she/her/hers/ella) taught for over 30 years in Denver Public Schools before joining the University of Denver as an adjunct professor in 2020. She obtained her PhD at the University of Denver in 2016. She serves on Denver Public Schools Board of Education. Her research interests are in educational travel, culturally responsive education, multilingualism, and Holocaust and genocide studies.

Michelle Knight-Manuel
Morgridge College of Education
Professor and Dean

Michelle was a Professor at Teachers College, Columbia University. Previously, she served as Associate Dean and Senior Advisor to the Provost/Dean at Teachers College, Columbia University. Her scholarly work includes three distinct yet complementary strands of inquiry: college readiness and access, immigrant youth's civic strengths, and culturally relevant teacher preparation and professional development.

Keiko McCullough
Counseling Psychology
Assistant Professor

Keiko graduated with a PhD in Counseling Psychology from Indiana University Bloomington and completed her predoctoral internship at the University of California, Los Angeles. Her quantitative research explores the relationships between media consumption and psychological and mental health outcomes among marginalized groups. In the qualitative domain, Dr. McCullough examines how psychological constructs such as identities, attitudes, and ideologies are constructed in and through media texts.

Tim Pasternak
Counseling Psychology
Visiting Assistant Professor of the Practice of Counseling Psychology

Timothy received his Doctorate and Master's degrees in Clinical Psychology from the Graduate School of Professional Psychology at the University of Denver and is a licensed psychologist in the state of Colorado. He specializes in adolescent and adult psychotherapy and psychological assessment. Dr. Pasternak's clinical expertise includes mindfulness, Acceptance and Commitment Therapy, Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, and Family Systems Therapy.

Morgridge College of Education

Geneva Polser

Counseling Psychology

*Visiting Assistant Professor of the Practice of Counseling
Psychology*

Geneva earned her PhD in Counseling Psychology from the University of Denver. She completed her predoctoral internship at Vanderbilt University Counseling Center and her postdoctoral fellowship at Osher Center for Integrative Medicine at Vanderbilt University Medical Center. In addition, Dr. Polser has worked in schools, jails, and private practice. Her area of clinical and research interest include trauma, clinical hypnosis, mindfulness, Multicultural Orientation, and chronic pain/chronic illness.

Starla Sieveke-Pearson

Educational Leadership & Policy Studies

Clinical Assistant Professor

Starla led public schools at the building and district level and served as an adjunct instructor in both teacher and leader preparation programs. Her areas of interest include studying teacher professional development that leads to student learning and the impact of school accountability on student outcomes.

College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics

Charlotte Aten

Mathematics

Visiting Assistant Professor

Charlotte comes from the University of Rochester, where she completed her PhD. Her research areas combine combinatorics, algebra, and topology. In particular, she is interested in the graphs/complexes/manifolds that come from (quasi)groups.

Sujoy Mukherjee

Mathematics

Visiting Assistant Professor

Sujoy previously had a position at Ohio State University. His research areas include combinatorics, graph theory, low dimensional topology and algebraic structures motivated by knot theory.

Fei Qi

Mathematics

Visiting Assistant Professor

Fei previously had a postdoctoral position at the University of Manitoba. His research area includes mathematical physics, quantum field theory, and vertex algebras.

Rodrigo Ribeiro

Mathematics

Visiting Assistant Professor

Rodrigo previously had post-doctoral positions at IMPA (Instituto Nacional de Matemática Pura e Aplicada) in Rio de Janeiro, at the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile and at CU Boulder. His main research area is probability and random graphs.

Tristan Weber

Physics and Astronomy

Visiting Teaching Assistant Professor

Tristan previously was a post-doctoral researcher at NASA Goddard Space Flight Center, where he studied the influence of planetary magnetospheres on atmospheric evolution and habitability. He now teaches physics and astronomy, with a focus on creating an interactive and inclusive classroom environment.

Daniel F. Ritchie School of Engineering and Computer Science

Daniel Auger
Mechanical and Materials Engineering
Visiting Professor of the Practice of Engineering

Daniel brings nearly 30 years of experience in commercial research and development (R&D), leading design teams for medical devices and instrumentation. His most recent position was as Distinguished Engineering Fellow and Vice President of R&D for DePuy Synthes, Johnson & Johnson. Dr. Auger received his PhD in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Leeds (UK). He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Waterloo (Canada). Dr. Auger will be teaching in the Senior Design capstone sequence, and in areas of ethics and biomedical device design

Andrew Hannum
Computer Science
Teaching Assistant Professor

Andrew was previously Visiting Teaching Faculty in the Department of Computer Science. His research interests include machine learning, deep learning, computational music, generative art, digital signal processing, and human-computer interaction.

Sangho Bok
Electrical & Computer Engineering
Associate Professor

Sangho received his PhD from the University of Missouri. He has more than 15 years of experience in academia and industry, and he received an NSF CAREER award in 2021. His research area includes biosensors, nanotechnology, and point-of-care systems.

Sean Connin
Computer Science
Teaching Professor

Sean graduated from the University of Colorado, Boulder and completed a Master of Forest Science at the Yale School of Forestry and Environmental Studies. He then earned a PhD in Earth Sciences from Dartmouth College. His research interests have included forays into environmental modeling, stable isotope geochemistry, paleoecology, and climate change.

Stephen Hutt
Computer Science
Assistant Professor

Stephen was previously a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Pennsylvania. His research is at the intersection of AI, Learning Science, and Cognitive Science. Specifically, he uses state-of-the-art techniques to examine the complex internal cognitive and noncognitive processes experienced in learning. He uses these insights to develop adaptive learning technologies.

Daniel F. Ritchie School of Engineering and Computer Science

Irvin Jones
Electrical and Computer
Engineering
Teaching Associate Professor

Irvin received his BS in Electrical Engineering from Stanford University; his MS in Computer Engineering and an MS in Computer Science from the University of California at Santa Barbara; and his PhD in Electrical Engineering from the University of Colorado at Boulder. He has many years of industry experience from employment at IBM, Bell Communications Research, Sony Corporation, and Hewlett-Packard Corporation. His interests are Embedded Systems, Controls, Intelligent/Smart Controls, Distributed Systems, Systems Engineering, and RF Communication.

Wojciech Kossek
Computer Science
Teaching Associate Professor

Wojciech joins the Computer Science department as a Teaching Associate Professor after having taught at the University of Denver since January of 2019. He taught several courses for our Master of Science in Data Science program as well as for the Engineering and Mathematics Departments. He considers himself an educator and a problem solver. He enjoys exploring interdisciplinary connections and helping students do the same. His teaching philosophy in a nutshell is: understand more, memorize less.

Alexander Stevens
Computer Science
Teaching Assistant Professor

Alex recently completed a PhD in math at the University of Denver studying extremal graph theory and computational geometry. He researches pedagogies which seek to humanize STEM.

Mindy McCarrolle
Electrical and Computer
Engineering
Visiting Professor of the Practice of Systems Engineering

Mindy is a visiting Professor of the Practice in the discipline of Systems Engineering and, as Adjunct Faculty in the Electrical and Computer Engineering (ECE) department, she has been teaching graduate courses in the discipline since 2018. Her professional passion is bringing complex, innovative technologies to practice in the aerospace industry.

Sturm College of Law

Julianne Cramer Visiting Professor

Julie is a visiting professor in the law school's Criminal Defense Clinic. For the past thirteen years she has been faculty at the UCLA School of Law where she co-taught their Criminal Defense Clinic. In 2021, she worked on several First Step Act cases, securing the release of two men who were serving life sentences and had already been incarcerated for over two decades.

Elizabeth Jordan Visiting Assistant Professor

Elizabeth's practice focuses on advancing human rights in the United States legal system through trauma-informed, cross-cultural representation of her clients. She has been adjunct faculty at the law school since January 2022, teaching Asylum Law and Advocacy Practicum, and now joins the faculty as visiting assistant professor in the law school's Immigration Law & Policy Clinic.

Laurent Sacharoff Professor

Laurent joins the Sturm College of Law faculty this year teaching criminal law, criminal procedure, and cybercrime. He was formerly professor of law at the University of Arkansas School of Law for 12 years. Laurent's research focuses on criminal procedure, especially the history of the Fourth and Fifth Amendments.

Aurora Randolph Visiting Assistant Professor

Aurora is a partner at ALR Civil Rights LLC where she represents incarcerated individuals as well as victims of state violence and abuse. She earned her JD at the Sturm College of Law in 2017 and then served as Clinical Fellow in the Civil Rights Clinic (CRC). Before starting her own firm and joining the CRC, Aurora was an attorney at Johnson & Klein, PLLC. She is now a visiting assistant professor in the CRC.

University Academic Programs

Catherine (Calley) Marotta
Writing Program
Teaching Assistant Professor

Calley has taught for over 15 years, first in primary schools, and later, as an Assistant Professor at Utah Valley University after earning her PhD from University of Wisconsin, Madison. She specializes in transnational literacy studies, labor studies, and community-engaged methodologies and holds a strong commitment to linguistic justice.

Logan Middleton
Writing Program
Teaching Assistant Professor

After earning his PhD from University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign where he also served as Assistant Director for the Center of Writing Studies, Logan held an appointment at University of Toronto's New College. Logan studies abolitionist approaches to teaching, research, and administrative work at the crossroads of community literacy and writing.

Alfred Owusu-Ansah
Writing Program
Teaching Assistant Professor

Alfred earned undergraduate and graduate degrees at the University of Cape Coast in Ghana, where he is from. While earning his PhD at Michigan Technological Institute, Alfred worked with faculty across the disciplines to develop approaches to studying communication and teaching practices of engineering faculty.

Olivia Tracy
Writing Program
Teaching Assistant Professor

Olivia earned her PhD at the University of Denver and has taught literature and writing courses at universities across the front range. Olivia studies embodied rhetorics, including textual embodiments about food and architecture, and the roles embodiment takes in technical writing and in access and dis/ability in classrooms and writing centers.

Nicole Turnipseed
Writing Program
Teaching Assistant Professor

Nicole joins us from the University of Toronto Mississauga's Institute for the Study of University Pedagogy, a position held after earning her PhD at University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. Nicole is a committed teacher and scholar who focuses on understanding and supporting students' holistic literate development as they create and design multimodally across disciplines.

University College

Rolfe Larson

Teaching Assistant Professor

*Assistant Academic Program Director- Information and Communications Technology and Communication
Management*

Rolfe previously was a trainer, consultant, and manager for nonprofit and mission-oriented organizations. His prior academic experience includes teaching at the University of St. Thomas in Minneapolis. He wrote Venture Forth! -- a book about business planning that was endorsed by the late Paul Newman of Newman's Own.

University Libraries

Denisse Solis
Digital Collections Librarian
Assistant Professor

Denisse has her Master's in Library and Information Science from Kent State. She is not new to DU, where she was a Visiting Assistant Professor in the University Libraries since 2018, first as a Residency Librarian and then as the Interim Digital Collections Librarian. Prior to coming to DU, she worked at Florida International University in several roles.

Madison Sussmann
Exhibit Librarian
Assistant Professor

Madison is an alum of the University of Denver, where she obtained her M.A. in Museum Anthropology, and previously worked in several museums, including the Houston Museum of Nature & Science, the Smithsonian Institute's Center for Folklife & Cultural Heritage, and DU's Museum of Anthropology.

Lauren Turner
Residency Librarian
Visiting Assistant Professor

Lauren is an alum of the University of Denver, having recently received her Masters of Library Science from the Morgridge College of Education. During her graduate studies she worked for the Center for Art Collection Ethics in the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences, and in the Libraries on projects to document student activism.

Natalia Umaña
Residency Librarian
Visiting Assistant Professor

Natalia received her M.S. in School Librarianship from the University at Buffalo, The State University of New York. She comes to DU from Skidmore College where she held numerous positions in the library. She also taught for several years working with English Language Learners in dual language elementary classrooms.

for edits or changes, please email provost@du.edu this book will be posted on the website shortly, with your modifications incorporated.